

EXPLORERS RISK DEATH

Enter Burning Mine and Find
20 Bodies.

BRING ONE TO SURFACE

Their Findings Known to Mine Officials
Only—Explorers Sworn to Secrecy.
Some Time Before Bodies Can Be Removed.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 19.—After three mining experts had made two trips into the St. Paul mine yesterday afternoon, it was learned from a reliable source that they found twenty bodies along seventy feet of the mine gallery.

The first body brought to the surface was that of Ollie Eriberg, shielded from the crowd, which remained in ignorance of its deliverance from the mine. The three men who explored the mine were called when they emerged. They immediately went to a Pullman car, where they were locked in with officials of the mine, state inspectors and other experts. When their story was told, every man was placed under oath to maintain secrecy.

The search for the bodies must last for days. The galleries must be strengthened and air sent into thousands of rooms in the death cavern. Water, too, must have flooded some parts of the third vein. A sullen crowd watched all night beside the main shaft, and the two companies of militia forced them back with clubbed rifles. White-faced women and children, whose relatives are in the mine, still stand huddled near the mouth of the shaft.

SEN. CRANE'S NEPHEW WEDS.

Young Man Marries in Haste, Unbeknown to Parents.

New York, Nov. 19.—Just before the marriage license bureau closed yesterday, a young man and a younger woman hurried into the office and asked for a license. The young man, in reply to set questions, said that he was 22, that his name was James Brewer Crane, of Westfield, Mass., and that he was the son of James Arthur Crane of that town. The bride, as she became fifteen minutes later, described herself as being 19 years old (she looked at least three years younger), and named the name of George Mildred Walters, daughter of George Walters of Fair Haven, Conn.

Crane is supposed to be the nephew of United States Senator W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts.

Immediately after he got the license, young Crane asked for an alderman, and Alderman James Smith performed the ceremony.

Westfield, Mass., Nov. 19.—James Brewer Crane is the son of James A. Crane, the most important citizen of Westfield. He attended Yale two years, but for the past year has been superintending his father's farm. Crane's mother said last night that she knew nothing of her son's marriage and refused to discuss the matter.

Crane's father left his paper mill hurriedly yesterday afternoon and took a train, probably for New York. Crane's bride is not known in Westfield. The Cranes are relatives of Senator Crane.

CUSTOMS CRISIS ACUTE.

General Strikeup in New York Is Now Believed Imminent.

New York, Nov. 19.—The crisis precipitated in the customs service at this port by the revelations made by former government employees engaged in the weighing and sampling of sugar imports has reached an acute stage. The housecleaning which Collector Loeb is preparing to inaugurate is now believed to threaten customs employees other than those having to do with sugar. The collector was asked if the twenty-two weighers whose names he had submitted to the United States civil service commission as "undesirables" had been indicted by the federal grand jury for complicity in the sugar frauds, but declined to either confirm or deny the report. Asked what his attitude was regarding the projected congressional investigation of the customs service, he replied that he was not engaged in the business of "rocking the boat." Mr. Loeb refused to discuss the charge of a former special deputy that the government had been defrauded of duties aggregating nearly $1,000,000, through the underweighing of imports admitted at this port between 1903 and 1904.

Just how many there are to go is not known. More than twenty-two, the number mentioned in dispatches from Washington, will get out. The collector has a list of men against whom there is evidence, and others against whom there is merely strong suspicion. More than twenty-two names have been forwarded to Washington though it may be that no more than this number can be prosecuted on evidence which satisfies the lawyers in the case.

And when this information was obtained yesterday—from very high authority—it also became known that the collector had already thrown fifty-six men out of the customs house. Since he took office last spring he has dropped that number. Some of them were merely inefficient, while others were under suspicion, and it is thought that the suspicion against some of them was in connection with the sugar frauds. Anyway, before long the sugar officials will find that they are dealing with a new set of men on the docks and piers where sugar from foreign parts is weighed.

BODY BROUGHT TO VERMONT.

Mrs. Hattie S. Parlin, Who Died at Wollaston, Mass.

Boston, Nov. 19.—Private funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Hattie S. Parlin of Wollaston, wife of Frank E. Parlin, formerly superintendent of schools of Quincy and now superintendent of schools of Cambridge. The services were held at the family home at 74 Lincoln avenue, Wollaston, and were conducted by Rev. Carl G. Horst, pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church. The body was sent to Bakersfield, Vt., for burial, where funeral services will be held Saturday.

Mrs. Parlin died Wednesday, after several months' illness. Before her marriage her name was Hattie Starr, she being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ozo.

Start of Bakersfield, Vt. She was interested in literary work while in Wollaston and was a member of the "Tea Cup" and other clubs of that district. She is survived by her husband, a father and mother, one brother and three sisters.

No Alcohol!

Ask your doctor if a family medicine, like Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is not vastly better without alcohol than with it.

J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Is alcohol a tonic? No! Does it make the blood pure? No! Does it strengthen the nerves? No! Is Ayer's Sarsaparilla a tonic? Yes! Does it make the blood pure? Yes! Does it strengthen the nerves? Yes! Is it entirely free from alcohol? Yes!
